FAQs

Can I update my life coaching website content myself after it's built?

Absolutely! I will design your life coaching website using user-friendly content management systems (like WordPress), making it easy for you to update text, images, and other content without any technical skills.

How long will it take to complete my life coaching website?

The timeline depends on the complexity of the project and the package you choose. Typically, a basic website take 2-3 days, while more advanced sites with additional features can take 4-7 days. We'll discuss a specific timeline during our initial consultation.

Will my life coaching be mobile-friendly?

Yes, all the websites I design are fully responsive, meaning they will look and function perfectly on all devices, including desktops, tablets, and smartphones.

Do you offer ongoing support and maintenance?

Yes, I offer ongoing support and maintenance packages to ensure your website remains up-to-date, secure, and running smoothly. We can discuss the details and find a plan that works best for you.

Can you help with SEO to make my website rank higher on search engines?

Yes, I include basic SEO optimization in all packages to help your site rank better. This includes setting up meta tags, keywords, and descriptions. For more advanced SEO services, we can discuss additional options.

What if I need additional features or changes after the website is completed?

I'm always here to help! If you need additional features or changes after the initial website is completed, I can provide further assistance at an hourly rate or through a custom package.

Will my website have a blog section?

Yes, if you want a blog section, I can set it up for you. A blog is a great way to share your insights, tips, and success stories, and it can help with SEO and engaging your audience.
